THE

forgetfulness of all else itself, and its man and flesh and blood, has been ere in many seasons. The cess of the play is one of tion and as the situations developed the man and the woman quiv-ered in the agony of the operation. It was a transcript faultless in its vivid reality.

As a man Stephen Ghent, Lester Lonergran realized perfectly the character so definitely depicted by the dramatist. He sustained the poise of the part exquisitely. The suppressed passion, the mental anguish, the thought of ultimate and everlasting ruin of all earthly hopes and ambitions was profoundly expressed. His acting in the final act was a vindication of tact and taste. If this was true of the man, Adelaide Nowak as the woman, Ruth Jordan, was no less true to the ideal of William Vaughn Moody. The racial traditions of her puritanical stock was reflected in her action throughout the play. It was only in the final scene that the pride of New England and the prejudice of family softened to the appeal of nature. Miss Nowak entered thoroughly into the spirit of the character. She made her unhappiness an idol and worshipped it, and when the altar fires grew low she rekindled them with the thought of the sacrifice made to this historic pride. She abandoned hope and gloried in it. She pushed the sun behind the clouds and sought the shadows. Her conception was in perfect accord with the dramatist's intent and she artistically expressed each changing mood. It was an admirable rendition of a role which is perpetually animated with many beautiful and delicately expressed situations.

Louisa Robertson as Polly Jordan, brings the intense atmosphere of the play into relief. It is well for the audience that such a character is introduced. The intensity of the action without her relieving humor would become almost tragic and she is altogether delightful in the butterfly role which she so cleverly plays. Mrs.
Charles W. Brooks, as the mother, Mrs. Jordan, also adds a finished impersonation so thoroughly in contrast with the other characters and so typical of the New England home that the audience joys in her presence just because of the wholesomeness of it.
The other characters do not enter vitality into the action of the play, but they are well cared for. The company is a strong one and the play beautifully staged. In conclusion one word may be added. Americans are always pleased to view their many sid-edness. In "The Great Divide" a typical American play is to be found —almost the ideal American play, and one which should not be overlooked. To lovers of the drama it may be commended without the least fear of disappointment.

"The Gingerbread Man." That bug-bear care will find it a hard task to inflect his presence on those who witness "The Gingerbread Man," the brilliant, musical fantasy that comes to The Kentucky on Monday, January 20, scintillating with wit and humor, brilliant in its scenic appointments, dazzling in its electrical effects. It is one big kaleidoscopic vision of light and color. Nixon and Zimmerman are responsible for the production.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer."
Like a crisp and refreshing autumn breeze, straight from the hills of New England, bringing with it the sweet aroma of the woods and the homely music of the farm-yard, "Quincy Adams Sawyer" will come to The Kentucky on Wednesday, January 22.
"Quincy Adams Sawyer" is entirely unlike any of the several great rural dramas that have found their way to the hearts of the people in the past decade. It has a quaintness and unobtrusive sentiment peculiarly its own. Its chief charm is its naturalness. It is never theatrical, never dramatic, but always natural. The characters are drawn so near to life that it requires an effort to become convinced that it is not real. Though the story is simple and very homely, it appeals in a mighty way to all kinds of play-goers. Nearly every one of the country plays on the stage today make it a point to caricature rural life and rural characters, but "Quincy Adams Sawyer" depicts life as it really is in a quiet Massachusetts farming town. The husky bee-scene in the third act has created more talk among those who have seen it than any other incident in the play.

"The Great Divide."
Town talk, theatrically considered, is centered upon the coming engagement of Henry Miller's company in "The Great Divide," which is announced for January 22 at The Kentucky with this notable drama by William Vaughn Moody. Mr. Miller has reached the zenith of his career as a producing manager. Never has an American play by an American author won such instant recognition at the hands of the most discriminating dramatic reviewers. During the two seasons engagement at The Princess and Daly's theaters, New York, it was only possible to procure seats by buying them weeks in advance or procuring them at advanced prices from speculators. Over a half million people saw this play in New York City alone during the five hundred performances.
"The Great Divide" will be given here by a superb company with all the wealth of scenic equipment and the complete production precisely as presented during the Metropolitan engagement.

I want to thank you for your promptness with which you set-

GOOD BLOOD

NATURE'S PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE

The preservation of health and prevention against disease is almost entirely dependent upon pure, healthy blood; every organ, tissue, nerve and sinew of the body draws on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength. Poisons, humors and germs from various sources often get into the blood, and then this great life-stream becomes a source of infection and disease. Instead of a nourishing, health-sustaining fluid, heredity is likewise an important factor, regulating the quality of the blood. Some persons are born with tainted blood from diseased ancestry, and Scrofula in one of its numerous forms is sure to crop out some time in life. Not only poisons in the blood are responsible for disease, but when the circulation is run down and becomes poor and weak in quality, then we see the effect in a general bad condition of health, such as weakness, sallow complexions, boils, and various skin eruptions. All blood troubles require a tonic and blood purifier, and none other equals S. S. S. It goes down to the very foundation of the trouble, and removes every particle of the poison or impurity from the blood. And not only does S. S. S. antidote the poisons, humors and germs, but it possesses health-giving, tonic properties, which build up and strengthen weak, impoverished blood, and fortifies the system against disease. S. S. S. permanently cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Eczema, Tetter, and all other skin diseases and disorders. Book on the blood and any medical advice free.

WIDER LOCKS

RECOMMENDED TO ALLOW WARSHIPS TO PASS.

Will Cost a Matter of Seven Millions More to Increase Width Ten Feet.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.—President Roosevelt has approved the recommendation of the Isthmian canal commission, endorsed by Secretary Taft, increasing the width of the locks of the canal from 100 to 110 feet. The president simply approves the recommendation, but makes no comment thereon.

The action of the commission in recommending the widening of the locks is in order "to meet requirements of the navy that reasonably can be expected in the near future."

The general board of the navy in a memorandum to the secretary of the navy dated October 29 last, presented the opinion "that the width of the locks as now fixed—namely, 100 feet—is insufficient for probable ships of future construction and that sound policy would dictate an increase to a clear width of 110 feet." The commission feels it should be guided by the wishes of the navy.

In a memorandum to Secretary Taft, the commission says the cost of all the locks at 100 feet wide is estimated at $52,580,011, while a width of 110 feet will cost $57,690,860, "a difference too small to be considered, assuming the necessity for the increased width be as stated by the navy."

The locks are to be 1,000 feet in length.

Suggestions to Senate Committee.

Secretary Taft appeared before the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals today and gave that committee information concerning the project and offered suggestions for legislation. He gave a complete review of the conditions at the canal site and quoted information he had received from various officials connected with the work. He expressed the opinion that the canal should be completed within six years from next July and that its ultimate cost would be approximately $300,000,000, including the purchase price.
